Why shares are sold by companies to collect equity capital, Capital can also be collected through debts. Usually public ltd companies raise capital through public offerings. Public ltd companies to raise capital from public need to register their company with SEBI. Stock market is a place where two types of people come together one who needs funds for business and other who have excess fund and want to invest in business. When you buy a share of any company you become partial or proportionate owner of that company. Share market is divided into two parts; Primary Market: IPO, FPO, Offer for sale takes place. Secondary Market is where sellers and buyers come together through e-platform to trade the shares and earn money. He explained the transaction at stock market through flow chart. He logged in the portal which showed live status of buying and selling of shares at secondary market. Various reports generate through the portal, with some examples he showed the demo how trading takes place. How documentation takes place, when you buy shares. Contracts from brokers and other related documents received. what is concept of T+2 Transaction day and second working day after transaction your accounts will be settled , shares will be sold from your dmat or if you have purchased shares amount will get deducted and shares will be seen in your dmat account. How people earn money from the market and what can make you lose money in market is a question of experience and study.

Students asked several questions related to the topic and Mr Akshay answered them in skilful manner. Dr.KETHAN.M proposed vote of thanks to Principal Dr.Raja Sulochana & Director Prof Kuldeep Sharma.

I didn't want it to be a preachy talk with giving them inputs on how to be a better leader. That usually doesn't work and what I chose to do instead was look at my own life and use my personal experiences to tell them what had helped me on my journey to be a leader to begin with and to be a better one as I grew in my career.

So, I had to learn early on what it meant to manage people and ensure that you played a role larger than that of a boss and contribute to their careers long term.

T. S. JAYAM
Principal
International Institute of Business Studies
75 Muthugadahalli Jala Hobli,
Bangalore North - 562 157.

As part of my address, I decided to jot down some words that I would use to tell them my story and how they could use these words to propel them in the right direction on their personal journeys.

I thought I should pen them down and share them here and here's the first part of the series:

Courage and confidence

When you are a leader, you can't let fear hold you back. If I had at any point thought that I am too young and thought about hierarchy and not stood up and had stayed in the by-lanes, I would never have been heard. I was also straightforward and didn't know filters, so I spoke my mind then and I speak it now. I do this knowing fully well that I could be wrong or that there could be as powerful opinions as mine on the exact opposite side of the spectrum and that I am always learning.

You need both courage and confidence to do the right thing and speak your mind and stand up and say it! This has truly helped me every step of the way. Having the confidence to approach anyone, to speak the truth, to take conflicts to the source and the courage to live by example and stand up not just for yourself but for people around you.

Exposure, experience and teamwork

Often, people tend to confuse the number of years a person has spent doing something with the true experience the person has. I have had a lot of situations in my life, when people judge me basis my years of experience and don't look at the actual body of work I have managed to do. I have also been told on two instances, of two job interviews at the closure stages that I was not picked because I was too young, and the existing team had people with more years of experience than I did, who would have to report to me.

So, know that exposure and experience are paramount and every opportunity that comes your way is a way to learn something new and challenge the status quo and use it to glean all that you can.

Teamwork is a great teacher; it gives you so much insight into people and the way they work and you cannot work alone even as an entrepreneur, so its always good to learn how to manage and work with teams, alongside them, leading from the front or leading from the back... I have worked with the best of teams across my career and I have had teams who have been supportive, encouraging and enthusiastic with all my madness and ideas and I am sure I have learnt a lot more from them than they probably have from me.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING IN BUSINESS RESEARCH METHODS -5/18/2022

FACULTY INCHARGE –Dr.M.kethan

Experiential learning is a method of imparting education through first-hand experience to the learner. This differs from the traditional academic classroom setting by making the learner to acquire skills, knowledge, and experience. The Experiential learning includes internships, field research activities, field trips, abroad studies and service-learning projects. The major purpose of the Experiential Learning methodology is engage the learner's emotions as well as developing their knowledge, skill and competency to develop a successful carrier. It enhances the students' ability in playing an active role in the learning process which leads greater gratification in .Building high performance team, developing the leaders, Improving Communication Skills and Turning the line managers into powerful coaches.

The experiential learning methodology enhances the learners' engagement to the subject, enriches deeper learning and improved outcomes on academic and personal skills which are required to build a successful career. Through the increased effectiveness of learning the students develop ability on the critical thinking, develop enhanced systematic problem solving skills and data based decision making ability. Experiential learning is also a process through which students develop knowledge skills and value from direct experience and the process of learning consists of four theoretical components.

Experiential Learning on innovation management –on innovative marketing Procedure of Innovative products. Marketing any product or service is vital to its success, highlighting the benefits of your product or service to existing and potential customers.

To develop a keen understanding of where your innovation is positioned in the marketplace. This will provide the basis of a marketing plan for both the initial launch and beyond.

Understand your market

Plan how you will carry out market research

Existing information can be useful (see Conduct market research). But you may also need to talk to potential customers or carry out other primary market research.

Quantitative research gives you hard facts and figures about the number of people or businesses you can target, and how they spend their money.

Qualitative research focuses on how your potential customers think and behave.

Assess the market

You need to know how many people will benefit from your innovative product or service, what competition there is, and the most cost-effective method of reaching the market with your offering.

If selling business-to-business, you can look at different market segments by dividing it up according to size of business, output, location and type.

For business-to-consumer sales, you might segment the market by socio-economic grouping, age, gender, marital status, lifestyle or occupation.

Talk to potential customers

Understand the needs of customers by talking directly to them

You will need to talk to potential customers to understand their needs, rather than just trying to anticipate what they want.

Listen to feedback

Engage with potential customers when developing your product or service, rather than simply hoping it will meet their needs.

Customers frequently see problems or future developments before manufacturers, because they use products everyday or are selling them on to people who complain if they do not come up to scratch.

Keep your distance

Do not base research on the opinions of friends and family. You risk hearing what you want to hear, rather than honest opinions.

If possible, hand the analysis over to someone who is not involved in the project.

Innovative marketing concept is all about conducting market research into customer needs, behaviours and trends, develop a prototype or changes within product designing, launching a new product in a unique place, pricing the product in a unique way, promoting products in an unconventional way.

Develop a marketing plan

Establish your marketing objectives

Use everything you have learned from your market research to identify target customers and key markets.

Establish what you want to achieve from your marketing. If you are an early stage start-up with no existing customers, you need to market the benefits of your offering to create demand among new customers.

Once you have built a customer base, you should aim to retain it and encourage customers to spend more with you - either through buying greater volumes, range of products or by purchasing more expensive items.

Build the marketing plan

Clarify which features provide the benefits that customers want.

Concentrate on the unique selling proposition (USP), as opposed to the "me too" features. For example, any supplier can claim to provide a reliable, high-quality service.

Know who your customers are

The ultimate end user may not be your customer. You may need to market and sell to an intermediary.

Distributors are close to your customers and can provide invaluable feedback. Listen to their problems and suggestions.

Customer relationship management (CRM) systems will help you to develop your customer database and carry out targeted marketing campaigns.

Set out the activities and tactics you intend to use to reach customers

Identify ways to reach your target customers. Most products and services are not suited to a mass market, and do not have universal appeal.

PR in local and national media can generate awareness and interest.

Industrial Visit to Indian Space Research Organization

Department of MBA, International Institute of Business Studies organized industrial visits to the Indian Space Research Organization (ISRO), Bangalore on 02.12.2022 & 03.12.2022 to I SEM MBA students. A total of 151 students and 6 faculty visited and gained knowledge about ISRO, Bangalore.

ISRO Satellite Centre (ISAC) is the lead center of the Indian Space Research Organization (ISRO) responsible for the design, development, assembly & integration of communication, navigation, remote sensing, scientific, and small satellite missions. Scientist Mr. H L Srinivasa explained each and every display unit kept for the exhibition

It includes the models of the first Indian satellite Aryabhata, APPLE, INSAT series, etc. Satellites are basically of two types- Indian Remote Sensing (IRS) satellites and communication satellites. Remote sensing satellites are useful in activities like fishing (identifying places in the sea where fish can be found) and warnings about cyclones. During cyclone Hudhud, damage to human life was made minimal due to warnings.

IRS-1A was the first remote sensing mission undertaken by the Indian Space Research Organization (ISRO). It was a part-operational, part-experimental mission to develop Indian expertise in satellite imagery. Mr. Srinivas explained the various features of the rockets. Mr. H.L.Srinivasa also explained about different other satellites including the oldest Apple satellites and the later satellites with solar panels, solar sail, and minor rockets present on the satellites for adjusting their positions in space. The reason for gold color coating on the satellites for handling extremes of temperature was explained.

The Industrial Visit was a great benefit for the students to directly understand about the various concepts of satellite and space missions management by ISRO.
